Laura M. Burbridge, (Owner)

For eight years now I've enjoyed sending to you this small catalogue picturing the main entrance to The Sign of the Iris gardens. I wish you could all walk through these gates in person. Many of you, I hope will be able to do this very thing in 1956 when the American Iris Society will hold their annual Convention in Southern California.

MAKE THIS A DATE.

Thank you for your kind letters and words of appreciation for the orders we've sent you. Please be just as frank about the things you don't like. We're here to serve. In making you happy, we're happy.

Sincerely,

LAURA M. BURBRIDGE

Louisiana Iris

These beautiful perennials, originating in the Louisiana swamps are fascinating, and grow satisfactorily in most localities. Through experience I have found that they thrive in semi-shade, in enriched porous soil. The planting should be shallow; merely cover the rhizomes then sift over them a mulch of peat moss or compost. They are hungry and thirsty plants, so water them well, especially through growing and pre-blooming season, and feed them lots of well seasoned steer manure.
